I am in support of Microsoft, and believe that Microsoft has done very little to hurt the industry, and has done a lot to help. Standardizing the basics has made thing much better, and it is now cheaper and easier to purchase the OS, then it was to purchase the parts and pieces and deal with the issues to get it running. You are doing a injustice and doing nothing more then hurting the economy and a company that has done a lot for the country and industry that it is in. As a network Engineer Microsoft has made my life much easier, and my family loves the easy of use and functionality and integration of components.
